ENGLAND'S POLICY IN THE EAST. GERMAN OPINION OF THE DECLINE OF THE BRITISH POWER AND ITS CAUSES.

[From the Cologne Gazette, Feb. 18.] The causes of ill-feeling between England and Russia unfortunately lie very deep. The English look with undisguised mistrust on the constant progress of Russia in Asia and on her increasing infigence in the East. It will be remembered that public feeling in England was so excited by the Russian declaration in 1870 as to the neutrality of the Black Sea that a war was repeatedly threatened. It is only lately that the English were greatly provoked at Russia not having kept her promises about Khiva; and to this must be added the circumstance that England, owing to her absolute indifference about what is doing in Europe, has seen her induence decrease everywhere, and especially in Constantinopie. It the three empires are united their influence in Constantinopie will be decisive, But a suspicion is gaining ground that General Ignation, the Russian ambassador at Constantinopie, is playing a double game. This sione can explain the old language which the Prince of Montenegro, with his 103,000 subjects, is again using. public feeling in England was so excited by the

It is altogether propose that revelations concerning recent Post office embezziements will soon be made public. THE CHURCH DISASTER.

Ex-Chief Engineer Harry Howard on Its Causes.

The Firemen Should Have Overthrown the Wall.

"I'D HAVE HURRIED IT DOWN."

The inquest into the killing of Michael McCarthy and four other persons in St. Andrew's church, on Thursday night of last week, seems not likely to be ended for several days. The testimony given upon other days had not the well known Harry Howard, formerly Chief Engineer of the old Volunteer Fire Department, appeared as a witness and expert. Mr. Howard gave utterance to some very seat. He wanted three things to be distinctly understood—first, that he did not appear as a witness voluntarily, but because he was sub-poenaed by Coroner Eickhoff; second, that ne approved of the payment of firemen for their la-bor, though he believed in the methods of the volunteer firemen of a former time; and, third, that he assumed nothing, but was assured of the truth of everything he said. Harry, despite his infirmities of body, is still jovial, and there lingers in his manner and speech some of the characteristics of the old volunteer fireman—sublimated, it may be said, and not to questions were abrupt and terse, also epigramforce and with such expressions as caused hearty laughter. The effect of such an answer as "I'd have it hurried down," to the question, "Would you have chipped of the upper part of the wall or would you have thrown it down?" may not be apparent to the reader, but it was such that neither the jurors nor the Coro ner could continue questioning unto they had joined in hearty laughter. Harry Howard's views sons as collectively responsible for it. He believes that the walls of the Shaw Building were not thrown down because the insurance people "were airaid of breaking a little crockeryware," and he considers that the Chief Engineer of the Fire De-partment displayed "carelessness and immentable ignorance" in not ordering the walls of the Snaw Bullding to be thrown down.

considers that the Chief Engineer of the Fire Department displayed "carclessiness and lameatable ignorance" in not ordering the wails of the Snaw Building to be thrown down.

was the first witness called. He testified as follows:—I live at No. 94 Elm street; am an inspector of puolic works; I was a fireman for twenty years, from 184 until 1867: I was a fire engineer for ten years, part of which time i was an assistant engineer and three years Chief of the Votuniteer Fire Department; I live near Shaw's building, and have been obliged to see its ruins every morning as I went to my business; I nave examined the burned outling and the adjoining houses on City Hall piace very closely, at the request of the Coroner, and I am an unwilling witness; I was amazed that a weakened building four stories higher than a church should be permitted to stand; it was a threat and menance to every person who entered the church; it was to me a puzzle on account of my memory of how things used to be done when Alfred Carson was Chief Engineer of the old Fire Department; Mr. Carson was a brilliant man, but a sale, careful and prudent engineer; i noticed no cracks in the waits of Shaw's building as I passed it on my way to business, as I did not go near enough to it; a wall need not be oracked to be dangerous; it is dangerous where it is warped; the waits of the Shaw Building and ing should not have been permitted to stand after the fire; they should have been permitted to stand after the fire; they should have been promited to stand after the fire the oricks cool; afterward the ruins could have been thereof own wow in this way without endanger. Ing the houses surrounding Shaw's Boilding; I teven think the wait could nave been pushed down without outering; it was the duty of the Engineer to push that west wall down under some miss of the other adjoining building with safety; I mis that on the rook of the building of City Hail place; there might have been used in pushing down without orders irou the clief Engineer; from the

the person in charge of the fre in the Snaw Building was guilty of gross carelessness, and was lamentably ignorant; I was in favor of organizing the present Fire Department and I now favor a paid free department.

then testified:—I am Cnief of the Fire Department of the city of New York; I was in charge at the life of the city of New York; I was in charge at the life of the city of New York; I was in charge at the life of the city of New York; I was in charge at the life of the city of New York; I was in charge at the life of the city of the Commissioner Disbecker states that the line has been in the hand of throwing all the snow from its tracks and piling it up on the sides. This would not be permitted, and the men would sumply throw it back again. The department insists that the railroad lines small leave the snow where it fails or have it carted away at their own expense. The blocking up of the sides of the streets for the accommodation of the railroad companies will not be permitted. It is probable the difficulty will be adjusted as it has been with the other roads.
